GRANGE FAIR CALLED OFF.

Plans for the Grange fair to have been held on the Barton fair grounds Thursday, Sept. 28, have been called off since that part of the order of the state board of health forbidding children under 16 years of age to attend fairs, was called to the attention of the managers. Since the fair was to have been largely for the children and the prizes were to go to the children this order seems to have quashed all possibility of having the event and making it a success.

The Grangers cannot understand why children may crowd moving picture theatres and congregate in school rooms but cannot gather in the open at a little Grange fair.

Schools Open.

Barton academy opened Monday with a registration of an even hundred which is expected to increase. This is slightly larger than last year and nearly reaches the seating capacity of the assembly room. The grades also show a large registration, the entire building containing approximately 300 students. The first grade has 29 beginners. The teaching corps was complete as announced. The Monitor hopes to publish comprehensive school news from time to time.

Express Thanks.

The Monitor is in receipt of letters from individuals, and from those representing more than one, expressing their appreciation to the people of Barton for their effort to give them a half day of entertainment Friday. The Monitor doubts very much whether the people of the surrounding towns are more disappointed than those of Barton in the outcome resulting from a down-pour that day and their inability to have the event later this fall, but plans are under foot for a similar day another season. In closing, one of the letters to the Monitor said, "It was a deed of kindness on your part and I am sure I voice the sentiment of the people of Glover and surrounding towns when I say we appreciate your kindness. It will be the means of binding the people closer together in love and friendship and will long be remembered by us. Thank you again in behalf of the people."

Mrs. Mary Gilman.

Mary Gilman was born in Inverness, Canada, Jan. 24, 1845, and died July 31, 1916. The circumstances attending her death were exceedingly sad, as she had gone to the home of one of her sons, George Gilman, to assist them in caring for some of their children, who were sick with a contagious disease. She considered herself immune as she had had the disease in childhood, but being in a delicate condition, she was a fit subject to contract the disease, which terminated very quickly in her death. The burial took place very quietly and no funeral services could be held until Sunday afternoon, August 27th, after the quarantine was lifted from the homes affected. The funeral service was held at the Lyndon Center Baptist church by the writer, a long-time friend of the family, assisted by Rev. Mr. Gould, pastor of the church. A large company of relatives were present and many and beautiful were the floral tributes. Besides her children there were present at the service, her brothers and sister, John Hinton of Westmore, George Hinton of Barton, Mrs. H. Roberts of East Charleston. Of other relatives present there were Mrs. Charles Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bugbee of West Burke, and J. Carroll of Woodbury. Mrs. Gilman has been a hard-working woman all her life, and with her warm sympathies and generous nature and earnest Christian spirit, she never hesitated to give herself to the services of those who needed her help. She was married to Joseph Gilman July 18, 1867, at Westmore, who had five small children and as a fruit of the marriage, nine children were born, seven of whom are living: Elmer E., of New York, Peter and George of Sutton, Edson of Lyndon. Mrs. Frank Ryder of Barton, Mrs. Amos Berry and Mrs. Harry Bickford of Sheffield. Those living of the first family are Charles of Cabot, Mrs. Andrew Ordway of Turnbridge, Alva of Sheffield and James of Hardwick. Mrs. Gilman's husband died about nine years ago after a long and trying illness. Together they brought up a large family who now rise up to honor their memory. "Blessed be the dead who die in the Lord, for they shall rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

Charles W. Kelley, Irasburg.

Henry Harding got a bad spill at White River Junction last week in one of the races at the state fair. Harding was driving Kleet when the horse became frightened at some auto tracks across the race course and jumped. Harding and other horses being back of Harding were unable to avoid a collision and in the mix-up Harding was badly bruised about the head and shoulders. Pickel was thrown in the mix-up but sustained only minor injuries.

From the Windsor Journal 'The Monitor copies the following: The parishioners of the local Methodist church will be grieved to learn that their pastor, Rev. W. C. Johnson, has decided to abandon his pastorate and move to the town of Derby, where he hopes to regain his health by a complete rest from the responsibility which has been his in the Vermont conference for many years. Rev. Mr. Johnson has been in Windsor for the past three and one-half years and during that time has made many friends by his kind and cheerful manner. For some time he has been at Willoughby lake in the northern part of the state, believing that a change would help him. He has been benefited, but on the advice of his physician will not attempt to do the work of a settled pastor until he has rested for a year. We shall all miss Pastor Johnson, for a real shepherd he is in every sense of the word—a good man who lives what he preaches.

A remarkable life, some years of which were spent in this village and vicinity, and was closely entwined with the educational and religious interests, ended with the death of Mrs. William Kelley at her home in Colton, N. Y., on July 21, 1916. Fanny J. Dorion was born in Glover Oct. 9, 1837. Her father was afflicted with an ancient disease, with the modern name of Wandering, and after a nomadic life of many years, in which his family resided for brief periods in 22 different towns, the family settled in this village, where they resided some years. It is noted by a member of the family that Fanny began her school career at three years of age and at seven was a pupil at the now famous academy at Brownington, when Dr. Twilight was in charge. She was a member of the Congregational church here and very successful as a teacher, was faithful and conscientious in the discharge of her various duties in church and school and much respected during her residence here. She married Simeon Patterson of West Glover, who died of fever in less than a year. On June 6, 1876, she married William Kelley, a native of Montpelier, who died some years ago. She is survived by an adopted daughter, two sisters, Mrs. Martha Bickford of Illinois and Mrs. Mary Sherburne, widow of Charles Sherburne of Glover, who at present resides with us. Her only brother, Charles S. Dorion, became an artist of some renown and was known in New York and other cities as a painter of marine views of note. He died in New York City some years ago but is well remembered by many residents of this village.

WEATHER SPOILS GUEST DAY.

The words of the immortal poet Burns, "The best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley," were brought pointedly home to the Improvement Club committee and to all Barton's citizens Friday when after weeks of sunshiny weather old Mr. Rainman started early with the sprinkler and kept it up at intervals all day. Barton was really about to put over a first-class stunt and show our neighbors that we could extend a glad hand, and welcome them within our borders, but the celebration was necessarily to be an out-of-doors affair and all plans went by the board. Several parties in automobiles did venture in and we hope were somewhat entertained by the photoplay at the Gem theatre. Those who were fortunate enough to see this picture can feel as though they have seen one of the finest screen portrayals ever produced, and a picture that ranks with such productions as "Carmen" and "Judith." The club rooms were kept open and a number of visitors were shown through the rooms and entertained by club members. Early in the afternoon it became apparent that the concert and corn roast at Roaring Brook Park would have to be abandoned and it was truly a shame because Barton has a perfect right to be especially proud of the band this season as it has been on other years, but this year the boys are plying difficult stuff and getting the right technique. At a meeting of the Barton Improvement club on Saturday it was decided in view of the fact that the band would be disorganized and many of the baseball fellows away at school, to make no further attempt to hold the Guest Day celebration this year but it is hoped to have a bigger and better one next year.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler and grandson have returned from Canada.

B. C. Kimball's family and Jesse Kimball and family recently visited in Greensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Drown spent Saturday and Sunday in Lyndon and Lyndonville.

Mrs. Josephine Forrest of Boston, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Friend, has gone to Chicago to visit a niece.
